THE BALL.

Given in Honor of the Infants in New York—The Ball Transformed into a Bower of Green and Light.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The ball under the auspices of the circle of infants, which was one of the most beautiful ever given in New York. The decorations were all on the most lavish scale from the twenty-sixth entrance of the assembly rooms to the ball room and received 100,000.

The ball began at the early hour of 10 o'clock. The infants and the ladies of her suite had placed at their disposal the private carriage of Mrs. E. J. Lorrain and Mrs. Theodore A. Hunt, in which they were conveyed to the ball. Mrs. E. J. Smith and Juan C. Gallas of the Cienfuegos Cervantes went to the Savoy hotel and escorted the royal party to the ball.

They had an escort of mounted police, tendered through the courtesy of Superintendent Dymos. The entrance hall was transformed into a bower of green and electric lights with bunches of apple and peach blossoms. The ballroom floor was covered with a green carpet. The room in which the infants received was the upper concert hall and was decorated by Daven with rare old Spanish tapestries and with lace and most exquisite flowers.

The reception was as informal as any in any well-appointed New York home. The infants then went to her box at the south side of the assembly room. Over this box was placed a bower of arches and pink roses and most exquisite flowers.

The music for dancing was furnished by Landers' orchestra, and that for the promenade by a Cuban band led by Juan Dominguez.

The princess entered the royal box with Prince Antonio. She was attired in an Isabella gown cut very low, with extra long court train. The hem was garnished with miniature drapings of the Spanish blue velvet skirted with gold fringe and with loops of ribbon. The carriage was edged with point lace each point surmounted with a white flower. There was a grille about her waist of supplies, turgid and diamond. There were no sleeves, but profusely trimmed on the shoulders with heavy puffing of blue velvet lined with white satin. The collar as regular Spanish style, waved on the side with long drooping curls at the back, diamond and silver in her hair.

The princess held a reception after which Isabella descended to the floor on the arm of Senor Navarro. An elaborate banquet followed, which concluded the great event.

CHOCTAW LANDS.

Gift to the Deeds Approved by President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—President Cleveland has approved the deeds of the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations for their right and title to the "leased lands" in the Indian territory, formerly occupied by the Choctaw and Chickasaw, but now constituting a portion of Oklahoma territory, for which the sum of $2,000,000 was appropriated by the Indian appropriation act of March 3, 1871. These nations were required to execute releases and conveyances to cede their claims in the manner and form satisfactory to the president.

President Harrison declined to approve the deeds submitted for release of the lands, and stated his reasons in a special message at the first session of the Fifty-second congress.

The deeds remained in President Harrison's possession until March 3, 1893, when he returned them to Secretary Noble without his signature, explaining that while he had opposed the appropriation, the matter had been again affirmatively acted upon by congress.

Under the terms of the law this approval makes the appropriation immediately available, and the money is likely to be expended in the deeds will be paid to the accredited agents of the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations.

It is believed the accused woman is in love with Mr. Koesters and wanted to pave the way to marry him.

Cleveland and the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—In conversation with congressmen who have been to the white house day after day for nearly three months past nothing has cropped out to show that the president has ever declared himself specifically in favor of an income tax. They say that on the contrary he has been careful to fight shy of this subject, preferring not to commit himself in advance of his message to the next congress. More than one of them has asked an official question of the president upon this bit of radical legislation and failed to receive it.

MUST PAY UP.

Armed Men Camped in Muhlenberg County.

The Citizens Object to Paying Interest on the Railroad Bonds Voted by the County, and May Resist the Federal Official's Trouble Expected.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 26.—U. S. Marshal Blackburn, with every available regular deputy and sixty specials, comprising an army of 150 men, is now established in camp at Central City, Muhlenberg county. He will, in accordance with the order of the federal court, levy on the property of the citizens of Muhlenberg county for the purpose of collecting the defaulted interest on the bonds voted by the county to aid in the construction of the Elizabethtown and Paducah railroad, which is now a part of the Newport News and Mississippi Valley system.

With the greatest possible secrecy Marshal Blackburn, with Deputy Marshal Bedford, left Thursday night, Deputy Marshal Smith left Bowling Green at the same time with a party of thirty men, and Deputy Marshal Bolling, with twenty-five men from Hancock county, and Deputy Hunter, of Bardonia, with the same number of picked men, have arrived at Central City, besides forces from other counties, part of the state. Marshal Blackburn Thursday morning assumed command of the concentrated forces. Bloodshed would not surprise anyone, for the citizens of that county have leagued themselves together and declared they will resist until death the payment of the taxes.

The facts leading to this warlike demonstration and the peril of the government forces are these: Twenty-five years ago Muhlenberg county voted $400,000 bonds to the railroad mentioned. The road was built, the bonds passed into the hands of third parties, and the interest fell due at the end of each succeeding year. At this time ago the Citizens National bank of Evansville, which held nearly all the bonds, filed suit in the federal court at Owensboro against J. D. Fleming, judge of the Muhlenberg county court, and said county, to recover $24,000 of interest which has just fallen due.

Judgment was given the bank by Judge Jackson and Barr, and it was ordered that eighty cents on each dollar of principal be collected. The officials of Muhlenberg county failed to obey the order of the court, and Almon C. Gapps was appointed a special collector to raise the $24,000. He was threatened with violence on every hand and failed in his attempt to levy on the property of the citizens. The facts were communicated to the federal court, and on April 21 Judge Leighton and Barr entered an order directing the United States marshal to use a sufficient force, to visit Muhlenberg county, seize the necessary property and guard the collectors.

A carload of provisions and camping tents was sent to Central City Thursday morning by Judge Barr. The county officers, however, reported that many petitions in reference to the Briggs case had been received from presbytery of the United States, and that such overtures were intended to influence the jury, and were out of order. The assembly appointed a committee of five, including Moderator Clark, to call at once upon the executive officers of the national government and urge that quick legal measures be taken to close the Columbia fair on next Sabbath.

Mr. Briggs then took the floor to continue his five-hour speech. He profusely upbraided all the commissioners, who were unaccompanied by legal notice.

The professor proved to be an adept in these matters and showed that he would be no mean antagonist in a civil court.

Said an assemblyman to me: "Oh, we are patiently waiting for Briggs to read to us preparatory to his publication by a New York house, and then we'll jump in, brush the technicalities aside and try him on the merits of his case."

The Liquor Question in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 26.—The government is considering the question how to lessen the evils caused by the unrestricted sale of alcoholic beverages. It is believed that the better course would be for the government either to take the sale of spirits into its own hands or to introduce the Götterberg system. One of the causes of the life famine is now admitted to be the drunkenness and laziness of the peasants.

The Italian Crisis.

ROME, May 26.—It is announced officially that King Humbert has refused to accept the resignation of any cabinet minister except that of Bonasini, formerly minister of justice. The crisis is believed to have been deferred by the king's actions, but by no means ended. The senate will remain hostile to the government unless the pension bill be withdrawn.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The president Thursday appointed William D. Quinn, of Michigan, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to the Netherlands.

UGLY CHARGES.

Made Against the Managers of the Indiana Prison System.

LOUISVILLE, May 27.—Ugly charges against the management of the Indiana state prison, south, in Jeffersonville, were investigated Friday by acting Governor Regier. Hardly had the officials recovered from the tedious legislative session than the rumor went out that the sudden death of convict Newton Short on Wednesday was due to negligence and possibly brutality. Warden Patten ordered an autopsy on the remains. Chaplain V. J. Collop, who has asserted that the prisoner's life had been shortened by reason of the treatment received while in confinement, was first placed on the stand. He said: "I demanded an inquiry and stayed in the Warden's office until he agreed to an autopsy. He would never have ordered one had I not insisted. Dr. Runcie, the prison physician, told me last Friday there was nothing the matter with Short, except that he had an epileptic fit and was in a comatose state. He said: 'Let him die; he's just playing off.' Short was medicated, and they failed to give him medicine. I have been cognizant of these facts for a month. Deputy Warden Howard and Dr. Runcie to blame. I think some of the prisoners are treated cruelly. I think the warden is too harsh. I decline to say whether Deputy Warden Howard is brutal. There has been no discipline at the prison for five months, and there will be none until there is a change in the administration."

Dr. T. A. Graham, who with Dr. D. Pepton conducted the autopsy, was next called. He stated that Short's death was produced by apoplexy, and there was no wound in his head, and a blood clot had been found at the base of the brain. There were complications such as pleuritic adhesion and fatty degeneration of the heart. He said he looked them over when he was called to the prison, and that he might kill any individual at any moment. "Other evidence was heard, and Coroner Regier said that he could go no further."

HARTER AND CARLISLE.

Have a Tilt Over the Appointment of Two of Mr. Harter's Constituents.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Hon. Michael D. Harter, of Ohio, and Secretary Carlisle had a tilt Friday. Mr. Harter entered the secretary's room Friday morning with two constituents for whom he wanted a place. This was the calm bluff with which Hon. Michael prefaced his argument: "Mr. Secretary," said he, "this is the first time I have entered the treasury building since the new administration came into power. I have purposely refrained from bothering you because you were already overwhelmed with the business of your office." Continuing said he: "I have brought these two friends to ask you to appoint them to positions. This is the only favor I have asked of you, and it is probably the only favor that I shall ask."

"You are quite positive of this, Mr. Harter," asked the secretary quietly, at the same time scribbling a note which he sent out by a messenger. "Quite sure was the reply." Presently the messenger reappeared bearing in his arms a large number of letters. He handed them to the secretary, and said: "Mr. Harter, I find that you have made written requests for the retention of seven treasury employees, all Republicans."

Mr. Harter's face grew woefully crimson, and he made a disconnected statement that the gentlemen whose retention he had requested were personal friends. "Nevertheless they represent your share of patronage for the present," said the secretary. "The man Harter had those sorrowful men to console Friday evening, himself and the other constituents."

TRIPLE HANGING.

Three Negro Boys Pay the Penalty for One of the Most Brutal Crimes.

MOBILE, Ala., May 27.—A triple hanging took place Friday at Tuskegee, above this city, in Macon county.

Levy Pon, Boisy Pon and Robert Alexander were the parties. They were all Negro boys, and the penalty of one of the most brutal crimes ever heard of in this section.

One night in February last, near Tuskegee, Mr. Jesse Cox and wife, both very old, were aroused and he was called to his room by the pretense of an important telegram. Three Negroes overpowered him, one shooting him down, the wife came out and the three ravished her before his eyes. Then he was murdered before her eyes. The woman then fled and the three fled when they caught the Negro flocks and when they did the efforts to lynch them were frustrated by a secret removal of the prisoners. The law took its course and the prisoners were sentenced to hang Friday on their own confession.

Foster's Failure Causes Surprise.

CHICAGO, May 27.—"Charles" Foster, a well-known banker, is well known among Chicago bankers. The news of the failure of his bank caused the greatest surprise. He has been considered a man of great wealth, certainly not less than a million, and his failure has caused a great loss to a single moment. But as one banker said, he has been engaged in operations on a large scale and it is not always easy to find out a business man's exact condition when he begins to branch out extensively in a variety of enterprises. Such men, as the banker said, are the ones to feel most quickly any long continued pressure in financial matters.

Three Fatalities in One Day.

GREENSBORO, Pa., May 27.—Three fatalities occurred here Friday. Andrew Gull, a miner at Rumbough station, was killed by a locomotive falling upon him. A little child of Mr. Reuffer fell in a tub of water Friday and was drowned. Charles Low, a miner of Greentree, was fatally hurt Friday morning, by a fall of slate.

Enraged Dog in Bed.

INDIAN KY., May 27.—John Deibel and wife were sleeping in bed by neighbors, who called to borrow a horse. They had taken morphine in considerable quantities.

Nick Striking Stretches Bump.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 27.—Nick Striking, Georgia's colored Jesse James, was hanged here Friday in the presence of 4,000 people. He desired the hanging to take place at 11 o'clock so as to "take dinner in hell." He has murdered seven people.

A Suspicious Crack.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The Mercantile Financial Trusts' Agency Co. has suspended payment. The nominal capital of the concern exceeds $20,000,000, and the British deposits in the institution amount to $1,500,000.

CONTROLLER ECKELS.

Will Call the Attention of the Next Congress to a Measure Limiting the Loan of Money of National Banks to their Officers.

A Measure Limiting the Loan of Money of National Banks to their Officers.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Controller Eckels will recommend to the next congress a measure limiting the loan of money of the national banks to their officers and directors, the president of the bank, its cashier and those who hold enough stock in it to be members of the board of governance. The proposed measure will require a yes and may vote by the national legislature when such loans are made.

It is the intention of the controller to demand close examination of the books of banks wherein the president or cashier or any of those who hold enough stock in it to be a member of the board of governance, borrow the bank's money. Mr. Eckels believes that the failure of the Columbia bank of Indianapolis and the First National bank of Cedar Falls, Ia., was due to this indiscriminate borrowing of their own money by officials of the banks.

The following postmasters were appointed in Ohio Thursday: Deer Creek, Pickaway county, S. P. Werner, vice J. Taylor; Oberlin, Tenebrary county, Wm. Whitmer, vice H. R. Croxon.

Kentucky—Vanceburg, Lewis county, G. B. Paynter, vice Jennie Stewart, re-elected.

Indiana—Demotte, Jasper county, Sam'l McGinnis; Galveston, Cass county, J. Bitter; Hope, Bartholomew county, E. A. Norman; La Otto, Noble county, J. C. Gans; Moore, Jackson county, H. George; Smithfield, Monroe county, T. Thrasher.

The president has commuted to imprisonment for life the death sentence of Edward Pickens, a full-blooded Indian who was convicted of murder in the district of Kansas. The ground for commutation is that Pickens is of a very low order of intelligence, whose surroundings have not been favorable to the development of his mind, and there was some provocation. The court officers all recommended clemency.

As the result of District Attorney McIlharris's consultation with Attorney General, by Mr. J. U. Payne, his last night explicit instructions, if he finds on his arrival in Chicago, that the commission still adhered to its decision to open the World's fair next Sunday, "to present" the matter to the federal court and ask for an injunction, or any other legal process which the facts would warrant, and which would prevent a violation of the laws of the United States.

SCHOFIELD CRITICISED.

The General Failed to Attend the President's Dinner Given to the Spanish Princess.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Gen. Schofield is a subject of criticism on account of his failure to accept the president's invitation to accept the dinner given in honor of the Princess Enlailie. Gen. Schofield was in Chicago at the time attending a meeting of the army board of ordnance and fortifications, and his failure to accept the president's invitation to accept the dinner given in honor of the Princess Enlailie. Gen. Schofield was in Chicago at the time attending a meeting of the army board of ordnance and fortifications, and his failure to accept the president's invitation to accept the dinner given in honor of the Princess Enlailie.

Against Sunday Opening.

MACON, Ga., May 26.—The general southern assembly of the Presbyterian church now in session here Thursday passed a resolution presented by Rev. E. D. Hunt, of North Carolina, which reads:

Whereas, we believe that our people by their acts ought to bear consistent testimony against Sabbath desecration, and if the World's fair is opened on the Sabbath day it will be a national disgrace and productive of great injury to the cause of Christ, therefore

Resolved, That we advise the members of our churches that if the World's fair should be opened on the Lord's day to record their disapprobation and protest in a practical way by remaining away from the fair altogether.

A Hitch in the Geary Law.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Attorney General Olney has received a telegram from New York stating that Judge Lacomb, of the circuit court of New York, had decided that section 6 of the Geary law, though decided to be constitutional, was still ineffectual because no provision is made as to how or by whom the order of deportation of Chinese is to be executed. This is said to be a new question which was not raised or in any way involved in previous appeals.

To Respond an Ancient Law.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26.—The town council has adopted the draft of a bill accepted by the authorities of the university by which the law giving the right to imprison all girls of base condition in a series of reform houses is repealed. It will be remembered that recent attempts to enforce this statute, has resulted in much hardship and injustice to respectable women.

The Cornell Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Schermerhorn, of Cornell university, and ex-Gov. Cornell were at the white house Thursday to extend the president, on behalf of the trustees of the Cornell university an invitation to participate in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the institution, which will be observed in October. As governor of New York he was ex-officio member of the university. The president accepted the invitation cordially, and subject to the possible exigencies of public affairs, signified his purpose to be present.

Str Charles Confronts His Argument.

PARIS, May 26.—Sir Charles Russell entered Thursday upon the eighth day of his stay in London, on the occasion of the United States, though not infrequently interrupted and corrected by the United States. Sir Charles devoted most of his rhetorical energy to disputing the claim of the United States that they possessed property rights in wild animals. During the afternoon session the British attorney general spoke at length upon the seizure of vessels at the border of the foreign coast. He said the Canadian boat had been within the three miles territorial limit.

ON TO RICHMOND.

Ceremonies Over the Removal of Jefferson Davis' Remains.

Confederate Uniforms Worn on the Stage During the Service—Gov. Foster Promotes an Entry Over the Blue Journey to Virginia's Capital.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 25.—The remains of Jeff Davis, the president of the confederacy, were removed from Louisiana Saturday, en route to their final resting place at Richmond, Va. The memorial hall in which the body lay in state, was visited all Saturday night and Sunday by a crowd of citizens representing all ranks from the humble laborer to the haughty aristocrat, all vying with each other in their attempt to, in some measure show their respect for the deceased whose remains were about to be transferred from the state which he loved so well and in which his last moments were spent. The floral offerings were very handsome. There were mammoth stars and crescents of immortelles in the Confederate colors, and came respectively from the veterans Confederate States cavalry, Louisiana division, from the Army of the Tennessee and from the Ladies' Confederate Memorial association. The Washington Artillery of Louisiana were represented in a variety of immortelles, a yellow circle trimmed with blue with crossed cannon in the center and the name of the command framed in purple across the face of the design. The gift of the Confederate Survivors' Association of Augusta was a wreath of white immortelles with "C. S. A. Augusta" in red immortelles above and below the circle. As the hour drew near for the last sad ceremonies to take place, the crowds at the hall increased and every available inch of the banquet place, the banks distant was held by persons anxious to catch a glimpse of the mortal procession which was soon to pass.

Gov. Murphy J. Foster and Lieut. Gov. Parage, accompanied by their staff, reached the hall at 4:30. They were followed by Rev. Gordon Baker, a Confederate veteran and all moral sense and there was some provocation. The court officers all recommended clemency.

As the result of District Attorney McIlharris's consultation with Attorney General, by Mr. J. U. Payne, his last night explicit instructions, if he finds on his arrival in Chicago, that the commission still adhered to its decision to open the World's fair next Sunday, "to present" the matter to the federal court and ask for an injunction, or any other legal process which the facts would warrant, and which would prevent a violation of the laws of the United States.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1893.

It is estimated that by the $250 exemption close the taxable property of Kentucky is reduced $3,000-000.

Gov. Foster, having just failed in his own business on account, as he confesses, of neglect and bad management, is hardly the financier to tell the Government what policy it should pursue.

Ex-Secretary Foster has failed, with liabilities of possibly a million and assets very much less. Too much politics and not enough attention to personal affairs are the causes given by the Secretary himself.

Representative George Halbert,
according to mighty good authority, charged the legislature with all sorts of venality and corruption, and now he says he didn't do it.
We are afraid the venerable Geo.
is a fox.

The World's Exposition was open last Sunday and over two hundred thousand people passed through the gates. The Kentucky exhibit was closed, but, as is very often the case in other Kentucky "exhibits," a side door was open.

A New York meteorologist attributes the backward spring to "an acute derangement of the isothermal strata." We feared something of the kind. When as rough an old curmudgeon as the Winter of 1892-3 attempts any longer in the lap friskiness, there is no telling what the damage is going to be.
C. J.

The Public Ledger, of Maysville, has been scoring the county magistrates for illiberality and general assininity. The C. M. made a few weak attempts at refutation but Davis, as usual, comes out right side up. We used to have a time with our twenty-four or more justices, but happily we have attained unto better things.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church is trying Dr.
Briggs for heresy. Old John Calvin tried Servetus for "heresy" and then burnt him at the stake, or burnt him first and tried him afterwards, we have forgotten which,
and from the temper and malice displayed by the present board of inquisitors we feel sure some of them would be only too happy to give Briggs a roasting.

The Union Literary Society of the State College Lexington, Ky., held its regular meeting last Tuesday night at the college, and President Patterson, in order to prevent the usual disorder, applied to the police for assistance. The officers were dressed in citizens' clothes, and their presence did not become generally known until about the time the entertainment was drawing to a close. The students had prepared two cannon, to be fired at the closing of the exercises, and after discovering that they were being watched, began "guying" the officers. They moved toward the guns, and avowed their intention to fire the salute. The officers drew their pistols, and threatened to kill the first one to touch the cannon.
A large mountaineer student grabbed a coupling pin from the gun, and declared that he had fifty backers, and they would fire the gun or die. While this discussion was going on, one of the boys got hold of the string which they had arranged to touch off the guns, and they both exploded at once, knocking the officers down and completely deafening them.
After chastising the policemen to town, the students invaded the President's front yard, and kept up a howl until well-nigh daylight.
The faculty called a number of them up in the morning, but there being so many and it being impossible to find the leader, they were not punished. Nearly one-half the faculty voted for dismissing the ring-leaders.

A citizen of Frenchburg, Menifee county, is afraid the new charter for towns of the sixth class is a mistake as far as that place is concerned: "It provides for about eight-teen officers, and we have only about thirteen persons eligible. It will break the town if they have to meet the requirements of the charter."

The Ground-Swell.

Owensboro Inquirer: If the House will get that early adjournment resolution through, all past delinquencies will be forgiven it by a very tolerant constituency.

Greenville Mahlenberger: Legislators, in Kentucky are paid five dollars a day for their services.
About two-thirds of the present Legislature should be indicted for obtaining money under false pretense.

Owensboro Messenger: There are signs that real trouble is now in store for the Legislature if it does not immediately show in good faith evidences of quitting. The Senate has agreed to adjourn June 15. What says the House?

Elizabethtown News: The Legislature is very anxious for the scalp of Representative Halbert because he abused it, but it does not compare with the longings of the people for the scalps of that whole body of triflers, who have squandered their time, pillaged the treasury and exhausted their patience.

Maysville Public Ledger: The Kentucky Legislature is careful to keep up its record for taking care of its own members and letting the tax-payers supply the necessary funds. A resolution to fine absentees was introduced in the House, but the Senate voted down the bill to deduct the per diem of members absent without good cause.

The Legislature gets worse and worse every day. It ought to turn off the gas and go home," says the Paducah News.

It ought to blow it out and go to bed.

Of Mr. Spalding's anti-dog bill the Larue County Herald says the trouble is that the members of the Legislature "care very little about dogs and less about sheep. Their favorite occupation is attending the Lexington races."

Who Is To Blame?

We listen to the talk of Republicans as to the responsibility for the present financial stringency with feelings of mingled amusement and disgust. The vapors of the opo-sition press are equally as idle and silly. The entire refrain of the oppositional song is, A Democratic administration is responsible for the whole of it. Bless their dear innocent hearts, do they ever think of McKinley and his little bill?— of Foster and his monkeying with Wall Street? Do they forget the tremendous panic in Europe, the failure of so many of the great money concerns there, and the consequent withdrawal of multiplied millions of capital from America? The fallacy of McKinley and the foolish pandering of Foster to Wall Street gave a fictitious value to stocks. The people repudiated the iniquitous and unreasonable doctrine of McKinley-ism, Foster and his foolishness went down and out with an administration which gave support to all that was unreal and unwise, and the result could not be otherwise than temporarily disastrous. We say temporarily, because we believe the wise firmness of Mr. Carlisle in refusing to yield to the clamoring of Wall Street for bonds will restore confidence and build up trade.
After all, legitimate business has suffered but little. Trusts have busted, speculators on the necessities of the people have been knocked down and trampled on, but none weep save themselves. God lives and Democracy and the people are all right.

Louisville Times:—Not the least interesting feature of the World's Fair opening, as exemplifying individual opportunity and personal possibility in this great country, is this: The man who pressed the button that caused a square mile of inanimate matter, gathered at a cost of $100,000,000, to leap into life in the presence of 200,000 animated beings, was but a few years ago the sheriff of a single county in the State of New York, at which time the railroad magnate in whose private car the now President of the United States left for the seat of government after electrifying the fair was section foreman on the little Shelby branch railroad in the suburbs of Louisville. This is a feature of the first day of the Fair of which the Times makes a note, with the hope that every boy who reads these lines may do likewise.
To the American boy of even the humblest station in life everything is possible.

The work of moving and remodeling the parsonage of the South Methodist Church has begun. Mr. George Castle is superintending the work, and the minister's family has moved into a house belonging to R. T. Burns.

Elder Gosling preached at the South Methodist Church last Sunday morning, the congregation of the upper church attending. In the evening there were union services at the M. E. Church, conducted by Miss Cartwright.

Fred Bradley, who lives about four miles from Louisa on the Little Blaine road, was seriously hurt yesterday morning. He was kicked in the face by a horse with such force that five teeth were knocked out and a long deep gash cut in his lip.

Monday's Courier Journal has a cut showing the arrival of the Kentucky editors in Louisville. One Knight of the pencil carries a satchel and a seven benign smile like Editor Conley's, but the accompanying mustache is not recognized by those who know him best.

The Louisa Roller Mill has been sold to a syndicate of well-known business men of this place, who will enlarge and otherwise improve the plant and run it to its full capacity. Mr. Leonard, who is also one of the stock holders, will direct the operating of the mill.

Decoration Day was very quietly observed by our people. The bank was closed, but as the law requires the post office to be kept open for the arrival and departure of the mails it was not worth while to close it at all. Many went to our beautiful cemetery and spent the day among the graves of their beloved dead. Fragrant offerings, moist with tears for those we loved and lost, were tenderly laid upon the precious dust, as faithful memory recalled each vanished form and face.

MISS ANNA CARTWRIGHT.

The Evangelist.

Louisa is being profoundly stirred. Not Louisa only but the region round about. Cassville comes over en masse, and from the north, the south and the west they come by day and by night. Every afternoon the commodious audience room of the M. E. Church is nearly filled, and at night it is packed to the doors, with multitudes in the yard and on the pavement. What is the magnet which brings out all these people, rain or shine, and holds them until after ten o'clock each night? Primarily, curiosity to see and hear a woman preacher; secondly, a deep and abiding interest in a revival of religion, and, on the part of scores, a desire to flee the wrath to come and be saved from their sins;—"they came to scoff and remained to pray."

Let us go in, if we can get in. Every seat is full, and the aisles are full of occupied chairs. We find a seat by dint of much pushing and crowding, and after taking breath we turn our eyes pitifully towards the speaker, to pick out the "woman-preacher" of our preconceived idea. As we conclude that she has not yet arrived an entirely womanly woman arises and says in a rich contralto voice, "Let us sing hymn number two." There must be some mistake. Where are the hard features, the angular figure, the short hair, the harsh, high-pitched voice of the typical strong minded woman? None of these characteristics are here. In their stead we see a woman,—excuse us if we don't say lady, we never liked the word,—we see a woman of medium height, young in years, of graceful figure, pleasing and expressive face lighted up by a pair of honest, kindly eyes, and every feature indicative of great earnestness and sincerity of purpose. Her manner is very winning, in the pulpit and out of it, and we fancy that this, coupled with her earnestly sincere purpose, is the secret of her success.

The hymn being sung Miss Cartwright asks the congregation to kneel with her and ask the Divine blessing. The petition is a simple one. It is the request of a child asking the parent for some good thing, and is asked with a faith and confidence in the belief that the father withholds no good thing. It may be that at the close of her prayer she bursts into a melodious expression of hope or of trust or thanksgiving, singing a stanza or so before rising from her knees. This ended there is another familiar song and then Miss Cartwright tells her congregation what she intends to talk about. "Ye must be born again." These words spoken to Nicodemus were her text Sunday night, and the black-coated clergy who sat about the pulpit might well have envied the clear, simple, effective manner in which she handled the somewhat worn but always vital text.

This remarkable woman loses very little time in preliminaries and meaningless nothings. Her sermon, delivered with great earnestness and concentration of thought, has tired her a little, that is evident, but pushing a wealth of brown hair back from her brow with one shapely hand, she at once makes ready for her battle for souls. Penitents are invited by the love of Christ—not terrified by the terrors of the law—to come to the altar, and they come; not singly or by twos, but by scores. Every available kneeling place is occupied by humble penitents, and with them and for them this consecrated woman prays. And if professed converts are the measure of her success Miss Cartwright has surpassed anything known in Louisa during the recollection of the writer. However the world, and Christians, too, may differ as to the best manner of inducing people to turn from evil ways, of one thing there can be no doubt: If these meetings are the means of bringing one sinner into the ways of right—of making him cease to do evil and causing him to do right—the labor has not been in vain.

The social side of the "woman-preacher" is very pleasant. She believes with the poet that "Religion never was designed To make our pleasures less," hence she wears no long-drawn face, heaves no hypocritical sighs, utters no Pecksniffian groans. She is bright and chatty, and as we talked with her in the parlor of the Brunswick the other morning we wondered why she is not making happy the home and heart of some good man.

Miss Cartwright is a native of Ohio and comes of preaching stock. Her father is a minister, one sister older than she has been in the work, and a brother is now preparing for it. She has been preaching eight years. "How old is she?" Well, now, we were rude enough to ask her almost everything else, but this vital query we forgot. What do you say it is? Make the left hand figure mighty small, though, or you'll miss it.

We want to say in conclusion that the abominable slang which is the stock-in-trade of so many "evangelists"—"God save the mark!"—is entirely wanting from Miss Cartwright's sermons. She preaches the gospel of Christ as she understands it, earnestly and effectively, appealing to reason and judgment and not to morbid and unhealthy sentiment and desire.

NOTES.

Go before the bell rings if you want to get a seat. The South Methodist brother is there, working beside his Baptist colleague.

Miss Cartwright is a good singer, but the double work is too much and Mrs. Hughes ably assists her in singing.

An Evil and its Remedy.

We are reminded by the fact that on to-morrow occurs the annual election of school trustees in the various districts in the county, that while the election results in the selection of one or more individuals to look after the direction and control of the schools it also in fact almost invariably chooses the teacher for the district. How this can be well known to the most casual observer. For months many teachers have had their eyes on certain districts, those which draw the largest amount from the school fund of course, and for as many months they have been laying wires for the election of men who are presumably their friends or who may be persuaded to appoint them teachers. To this end they go over this district, importuning voters to cast their votes, not for intelligent, discreet and competent men to serve in the responsible position of school trustees, but for men who are pledged or may be induced to employ them as teachers. We do not charge that these teachers offer pecuniary inducements, or that any trustee or candidate is lase enough to accept a bribe, but the records of the courts show that men have been indicted for accepting a reward for their aid in this direction. So thoroughly has this reprehensible custom fastened itself upon our county school affairs that the first question heard when the election of a school trustee is announced is, Whom is he for teacher?

The evils growing out of such a custom are many, and they are so palpable that it seems a waste of time to mention them. One of the greatest is that very often incompetent teachers are thrust upon a district unable to help or defend itself. We hold that a paper certifying that a man or woman is qualified to teach a public school does not make him or her a teacher any more than the holding a diploma or a license makes a man a lawyer or a doctor. Yet, if the teacher has the certificate, and the trustees who were elected largely through his efforts see fit to sign his contract, nothing can keep him out of the school.

And there is yet another phase of the subject, and not an uncommon one, either. There are teachers, good ones, thoroughly qualified men and women who, while as educators they succeed admirably in certain districts are utter failures in others. Of the truth of this there are people in every district in Lawrence County who will bear testimony, and under the existing state of things, electing trustees pledged to certain favorites, the very man or woman least fitted for a district may be and often is selected for its teacher.

What is the remedy? The people have it if they see fit to use it. Vote for no man for trustee whom they know or believe to be the champion of a certain teacher. Failing in this the right to elect a trustee should be taken from them and the county superintendent should have the appointment of the entire board. He already has the right to fill vacancies, and there is no good reason why he should not have entire control of the school affairs of the County and be held to a strict account for their proper administration.

ORBITARY.

Mary J. Gardner, daughter of William Gardner, of White House, was born May 16th, 1876, and died May 16th, 1893. She was converted January 18th, 1892, and joined the M. E. Church South. She has lived a devoted Christian until the death angel called for her and she declared ready. She was only sick a few days. Her death was unexpected to all her friends, as she was never confined to her bed. She was always in her place at Sunday School and at church was always ready to take up her cross when called on. She will be greatly missed in her Sunday School class and in the prayer and class meetings. She is missed by her pastor; her bright face is missed by all who knew her; She will be missed by her parents, but their loss is her gain. May God bless the bereaved ones and may they meet her in heaven. R. F. Rice.

BUCHANAN, MAY 31.

A great many people and different orders congregated yesterday at Kavanaugh graveyard to decorate the graves of union soldiers, friends and relatives. Major Burchett, of Louisa, was with us and made a very interesting and appropriate speech in his usual fervent and earnest way, which made all feel it was well that they were there and that they were Americans. Miss Emma Burchett, of Louisa, also attended the decoration.

Rev. R. T. Johnson, of Round Bottom, W. Va., attended the decoration, and made a decidedly interesting and impressive speech. Rev. J. H. Wright will preach his annual sermon next Sunday, (June 1) in the grave yard just adjoining this place, known to some as Gibson's grove. Brother Wright has been preaching these annual sermons for many years to large crowds of hearers.

Manly C. Warren, of this place, who has been at Emory and Henry College, Va., since last fall, will return home next Saturday, to spend vacation.

Lizzie Warren is visiting her aunt Let at Detroit Michigan. Dood Rice is engaged in moving his saw mill from this place to Denton.

Ceres Smith, of Round Bottom, W. Va., who has been attending Notre Dame college of Cincinnati, for the last 4 years, will be at home in a few days, to spend vacation.

Birdie Finney graduated at the high school at Catlettsburg on the 29th inst.

Emma Turman is very sick.

Mrs. A. J. Faulkner, of Catlettsburg, is visiting her parents at this place.

Elta Bowcock, of Bear creek, who was thrown from a horse three weeks ago, and got her arm badly broken, is about well again.
